Choosing your fire

There's lots of information in this brochure – plus there's more information at diy.com/choosingtherightfire

Which type of fuel will you use?

Gas

Clean and efficient a great secondary source of heat for your home.

Look out for the green gas logo for our most energy efficient options, helping you control your energy bills.

All gas fires must be installed by a Gas Safe registered engineer. For more info go to www.gassaferegister.co.uk

Electric

Electric fires allow you to bring the warmth of a flame effect to a room with or without heat. A clean and instant alternative. Just plug in and go!

Solid fuel

Solid fuel, e.g. wood, coal etc, is an efficient solution that gives you the enjoyment of a real fire. Bring ambience and comfort to your home throughout the winter months.

All solid fuel stoves must be fitted in accordance with current regulations.

Choosing the right fuel for your solid fuel stove or open fire

Smoke controlled areas have been introduced into the UK by The Clean Air Act and are regulated by the Local Authorities. If you're unsure whether you live within one of these areas, please visit www.smokecontrol.defra.gov.uk or call 03459 335577.

- In smoke controlled areas, you need to ensure you're only burning approved smokeless fuels on your solid fuel stove or open fire. If it's a wood only burner, your appliance must be certified as DEFRA exempt and you must ensure you only burn dry wood with less than 20% moisture. Kiln dried wood is ideal for these types of stoves.
- Opting for a coal fire? You'll need to consider using a smokeless product so you're able to reduce the amount of air pollution emitted.
- No matter where you live, if you're burning wood fuel it'll be more effective and emit fewer pollutants if the logs are as dry as possible.
  To ensure this, it's best to store them in a log store or covered area with free air circulation.
- It's now a building regulation to have a carbon monoxide (CO) detector fitted in the same room as a new solid fuel stove, log burner or open fire. However, for peace of mind, we recommend you fit one no matter what type of fire you have – old or new.

Features & controls

Control type manual -The function controls are on the unit.

Control type remote -Has a separate remote control for ease of use.

Control type thermostatic - Thermostats switch heat on and off to maintain head levels. This reduces the overall heat output required during use, helping you use less energy and reduce running costs.

Control type slide - The control is located in an accessible position for easier lighting of the unit.

LED bulbs use less energy than conventional bulbs.

Which chimney or flue type do you have?

Chimney or flue

Brick or stone (Class 1)

More common in older properties (typically pre-1960s) the Class 1 type of chimney usually features a traditional chimney pot which rises up out of the rooftop.

Prefabricated flue† (Class 2)

Class 2 flues are more typically found on properties built from the 1960s onwards. This type can be identified by its metal flue pipe on the roof.

Pre-cast

Many newer properties that don't have chimneys are fitted with a pre-cast flue, this has a raised ridge tile or metal flue pipe on the roof. They have a much shallower depth compared to a chimney, slightly reducing your choice of fire.

No chimney

Just because you don't have a chimney or flue, it doesn't mean you can't have a fire! We've got a great choice of flueless gas or electric options to choose from. You'll also find it easier to keep the heat in with no chimney draughts to worry about!

Mix and match fires

Inset fires, surrounds and surround sets

Whether you choose gas or electric there is a mix and match option for you. In this section we've matched our inset fires with a selection of surrounds and surround sets – see the full range on page 69. Complete the look with our back panels and hearths (see page 72).

Create your own style Mix and match inset fires with surrounds

Choose your inset fire

Electric

Electric inset fires are easy to install as they don't require a chimney or flue. You can operate the flame independently giving a warm ambience without the heat.

Gas - Multi flue

Also commonly known as slim line fires due to their shallow fuel beds. These are the most versatile versions of the inset gas fire as they are compatible with most flues such as Class 1 chimneys, Class 2 flues (pre-fabricated) and pre-cast flues.

Gas - Full depth

Full depth fires are deeper than a multi flue fire. They require a deeper opening which are commonly found (but not exclusive to) homes built before 1960. Full depth fires have a deeper and very realistic flame effect.

Gas - High efficiency

Our range of high efficiency flued gas fires use a glass front to reduce the warm air being drawn up the chimney or flue. In addition to this air is circulated through a hotbox exchanging cool air for hot which increases the efficiency.

Mix and match with a surround set

Fireplace surrounds & surround sets

Choose from wood or micro marble, then select a back panel and hearth to match or contrast (see page 72). Surrounds are a simple solution. Combining a surround with laminate enables it to be used with gas or electric fires, dependent upon your existing flue.
