December 2025: Pinterest Predicts is known for setting the tone for how we decorate our homes each year, and the newly released 2026 Homes and Interiors forecast is no exception. Based on global search behaviour, Pinterest has highlighted the emerging styles set to be at the forefront of home design. Interiors expert and B&Q Head of Décor, Laura Dollimore, has unveiled a handy how-to guide for emulating each look in the home.

This year's forecast reveals a strong appetite for interiors that feel joyful, expressive and individual. From the colourful, circus-inspired FunHaus trend to the serene feel of Extra Celestial, Pinterest's predictions reflect a desire for spaces that balance personality with comfort - trends that can be introduced in every room of the home. Following the 2025 report* predicting the domination of Cherry Red, which was picked up by the masses throughout the year but most prominently in the 'Unexpected Red Theory', and correctly predicting popular trends like Castlecore, Maximalism, and kitchy 'Rococo Revival', this year's themes will undoubtedly be similarly accurate.

To help interior lovers stay a step ahead, B&Q's Head of Décor, Laura Dollimore, shares her styling guidance and product recommendations, whether you're experimenting with trend-led accessories or planning a full décor overhaul.

Laura Dollimore, B&Q Head of Décor, says: "Pinterest's 2026 interior trends really capture how people want their homes to feel - full of character, warmth and originality. What stands out this year is the variety: from the playful shapes and nostalgic stripes of FunHaus, to the earthy textures of Afrohemian décor, the elegant glamour of Neo Deco and the dreamy shimmer of Extra Celestial.

"Each trend has its own personality, but they all encourage more expressive, uplifting spaces. If you want to try a trend without committing to a full redesign, start with smaller touches - cushions, lighting or decorative accents are a great way to introduce new colours, textures or shapes.

"For those ready for a bigger change, these trends work beautifully through statement furniture, bold paint choices and patterned finishes. Layering materials - whether rustic textures, metallic details or iridescent surfaces - helps each look feel purposeful and long-lasting rather than a fleeting trend. Ultimately, it's about choosing elements that make your home feel joyful and uniquely yours."

LAURA DOLLIMORE'S GUIDE TO EMULATING THE "FUNHAUS" TREND

"FunHaus is all about playful, feel-good interiors with bold shapes, colour and a hint of nostalgia. To bring the trend into your home, start with striking accents like patterned cushions, sculptural lighting or striped décor. If you want to go bigger, a feature wall or statement piece of furniture in a lively colour can completely transform the space."

LAURA DOLLIMORE'S GUIDE TO EMULATING THE "AFROHEMIAN" TREND

Laura says: "Afrohemian décor blends natural textures, earthy tones and handcrafted detail to create warm, characterful spaces. Incorporate the look with woven baskets, rattan furniture or textured soft furnishings that add depth and interest. For a stronger take on the trend, mix rich textiles with warm wood tones to build a layered and inviting feel."

LAURA DOLLIMORE'S GUIDE TO EMULATING THE "NEO DECO" TREND

Laura says: "Neo Deco takes inspiration from classic Art Deco design but gives it a modern twist through clean lines and luxurious materials. Introduce it at home with metallic accents, geometric patterns or elegant lighting that instantly adds a sense of glamour. Larger pieces like curved armchairs or a statement mirror can elevate the look even further."

LAURA DOLLIMORE'S GUIDE TO EMULATING THE "EXTRA CELESTIAL" TREND

Laura says: "Extra Celestial embraces soft light, iridescent finishes and a dreamy, futuristic feel. Subtle touches like pearlescent accessories, ambient lighting or reflective décor can bring a gentle glow to any room. For a bolder approach, consider opalescent tiles or a softly shimmering wall colour to create a calming, otherworldly atmosphere."
